WHAT HAPPENED TO ANNA K.

A Novel, by Irina Reyn

"Irina Reyn's contemporary take on Anna Karenina is not a remake or a parody or even an homage, but its own story, twice-told, you might say. Filled like a blintz with references to all things Russian, this fast-paced yet ever-atmospheric tale of love and illusion (and disillusion) has the weight of a novel with things on its mind. You will be happy to entertain this second story."

IODINE

A Novel, by Haven Kimmel

"Trace—or lanthe, depending on her level of clarity—is a brilliant college senior with a very troubling past, which begins to manifest itself as she begins writing a 'dream journal' for a class. Is Trace descending into madness, or clawing her way out of it? I could not put this book down!"

THE LIKENESS

A Novel, by Tana French

"Cassie Maddox is a former undercover detective working in domestic violence when she is called to the scene of a murder of a girl who bears an uncanny resemblance to Cassie herself. Stranger still, the victim's name is apparently Lexie Madison, an identity fabricated by Cassie years ago. As layers of secrets are revealed, this mesmerizing novel will keep the reader riveted!"

AWESOME

by Jack Pendarvis

"Never has a voice been as original as the giant named Awesome in Pendarvis' magnificent modern fairy tale. Take one part Chuck Palahniuk, one part Hans Christian Andersen, and one part Stephen Hawking, and you may come close to getting it right. Laughing so hard never felt so good!"

BIKEMAN

An Epic Poem, by Thomas F. Flynn

"Thomas Flynn has captured succinctly and poignantly the 'forever September morning' we all remember—9/11. As the epic poem it is, Bikeman should be remembered for years to come."

THE LITTLE BOOK

A Novel, by Selden Edwards

"Incorporating time travel and historical fiction with a life-altering love story, Selden Edwards' The Little Book magically weaves a believable tale of one family's multigenerational visit to 1897 Vienna. You will want to read this one slowly, savoring every elegantly crafted sentence."

THE SPIRIT OF THE PLACE

by Samuel Shem

"The Spirit of the Place is certainly a book about the changing practice of medicine (not unexpected from the author The House of God), but it also explores the issues a practitioner must face outside of the office: difficult or doomed relationships, family matters of life and death, and the inevitable struggles of small town America."

THE MERCY RULE

A Novel, by Perri Klass

"In this arresting novel about marriage, parenting, working, and finding balance, Perri Klass tells the story of Lucy Weiss, a pediatrician working in a clinic that serves families who are just barely getting by. The novel is strong, poignant, and, often, funny."

BOOKS

A Memoir, by Larry McMurtry

"Larry McMurtry's memoir of his life in books—buying, selling, bidding, and lusting after—is full of characters and delights that may never have been seen by the 'average' bookseller, but what many of us wouldn't give for the chance! McMurtry is generous with specifics and musings, personal history, whimsy, and speculations."

GOOD PEOPLE

A Novel, by Marcus Sakey

"This thriller about a young couple struggling to have a baby is a primer on what not to do when you find your surly tenant has died in his sleep and left $370,000 in cash stashed in his kitchen. A great read!"
